

MODERN LUXURY

Interiors

NEW YORK

LOCAL LUMINARIES
& STYLISH
SHOWROOMS
TO KNOW NOW

CLEAN LIVING

KITCHENS & BATHS TO INSPIRE

MandiCasa

Luxury Italian brand MandiCasa opened the doors to its stunning debut flagship showroom, located in the A&D Building, this season. Founder Dario Snaidero has introduced the curated, fine Italian designs for kitchens, baths, closets and more that the brand is known for to the discerning North American market for the past 45 years, and now New Yorkers can experience the brand's impressive range in person. The sleek, modern showroom offers clients a space to bring their visions to life with products that balance elegance and functionality—and elevate an environment to new heights. CEO Alberto Snaidero says, "It's a true representation of our family's Italian roots with product selections born from a combination of detailed artistry and the newest technologies." 150 E. 58th St., 8th Floor, mandicasa.com

Clockwise from top: A sleek MandiCasa closet; a kitchen display in the MandiCasa showroom; Sister Parish Design's new showroom is equally joyful and inviting.

Sister Parish Design

In Sister Parish Design's new textile and wallcovering showroom and New York office, playful patterns are everywhere. Eliza Harris, chief creative officer and great-granddaughter of American interior decorator Sister Parish, flipped the space, which Harris once lived in, into a showroom in just six months. The brand's signature Tell a Sister event series and cocktail parties will also be held here during the summer. "I wanted the space to feel cheerful, inviting and functional to take our creative team from day to play," Harris says. "The new showroom will allow us to cater to interior designers and design enthusiasts in a more approachable and personable way." 321 W. 19th St., sisterparishdesign.com